THE WEDDING TIMELINE

WEDDINGS RELY ON TIMELINES. WHETHER THEY ARE BIG OR SMALL, THEY ARE COMPOSED OF SO MANY MOVING PARTS, PARTICIPANTS, AND EXPECTATIONS THAT, UNFORTUNATELY, MANY THINGS CAN GO WRONG. IT SHOULD BE NO SURPRISE THAT WEDDING PLANNERS HAVE PAGES AND PAGES CONSISTING OF TIMELINES.

These timelines include everything: locations, vendor arrival times, contact details for each person involved, and all of the necessary information required for the wedding to run smoothly, but not for us photographers.

Although it is nice to have access to the details of the wedding, on the day of the wedding, it can be almost overwhelming to follow. Communication with my team can be difficult when using an all-encompassing timeline.

That is why I have developed a plan for your wedding day! Couples chose us because of our expertise, talent, and experience. To deliver the highest quality of service to our clients, we must set ourselves up for success. Creating a timeline should be a collaborative effort between the couple, planner, and us as the photographers to ensure the best quality photographs.

We understand that timing is necessary and essential on such a big day. We need to make sure that the lighting is just right, the couple's ideas for specific images are met, and work around whatever limitations the wedding or reception venue or wedding party might bring. It is up to us to communicate well with the wedding planner and the couple for us all to be on the same page.

When all of those things have been completed, we can create an exact photography timeline that matches up with that of the planner but is unique to the photography crew. Our timeline always includes a list of shots we do not want to miss, contact information for the essential participants, and exact times and locations for where each of us must be, even sunset time.

Having all of this planned ahead of time and printed and in our hands, the day off is the best way to ensure that we are prepared and ready to deliver a remarkable experience for our clients.

Please, as you are planning your wedding, feel free to use this wedding day photo timeline to begin planning out the details, make it your own.

Luis Quintana Studio is a premier Wedding Photography Studio in Nashville, Tennessee.

The way we capture the beauty and uniqueness of each wedding is rooted in our experience with wedding photojournalism, fine-art and fashion photography influences. The result of such expertise and broad experience is creative and crisp wedding artistry that is romantic, timeless, and captures the emotion of such a truly memorable day.

We pride ourselves on not just being photographers, but rather artists creating unique imagery. Also, and most importantly, we take pride in creating an amazing experience for you.
